TODO: The tools-page will contain a description of the tools used by the various modules of hdrff.

1. Introduction

The hdrff-script doesn't process the images itself. It serves only as glue and calls external programs from within it's modules. In it's default setup, the modules only use a subset of the options these programs provide. Some modules allow you to provide additional options using configuration variables. For details, read the documentation of the individual modules.
